Information regard retirement

Greyhounds capable of living as happy, safe pets should be given the opportunity to do so, and should only be placed in homes where it is believed they will be appropriately cared for. Prior to rehoming the greyhound you must be comfortable that the new owner is capable and willing to provide the greyhound with appropriate care. This includes being satisfied that the new owner:

- will comply with all relevant legislation including, within NSW, the Companion Animals Act 1998, local government regulations and the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals Act 1979. The owner must register the greyhound on the companion animals register.
- lives in a residence that permits the keeping of dogs
- will meet the physical, behavioural and social needs of the greyhound
- has time everyday to positively interact with the greyhound and provide daily exercise
- has the means to seek veterinary care as required
- is prepared to educate themselves on greyhound care and ownership

You must also be confident that the greyhound is of adequate physical and mental health to be a happy and safe pet. You should disclose any behavioural or health problems to the new owner prior to rehoming so they can be prepared to manage these accordingly.

It is preferable to have your greyhound neutered when it becomes a pet. You should discuss with your veterinarian how to organise this.
